Training Year: 2022

Dear Master Gardener Extension Volunteer Applicant,

Thank you for your interest in the University of Georgia's Master Gardener Extension Volunteer training program, in Henry County. We are pleased to offer the volunteer training program again for the year 2022.

The Master Gardener Extension Volunteer (MGEV) program in Georgia is a volunteer program designed to help University of Georgia Extension meet its mission to extend lifelong learning to the people of Georgia. MGEVs are plant enthusiasts who help Extension transfer research-based information about gardening and related subjects to the public by partnering with volunteer educators. Master Gardener Extension Volunteers are active in many Georgia counties. Through this program, Extension is able to reach out and serve more citizens with educational programming and demonstrations. The Georgia MGEV Program is focused on extending education in five priority areas, referred to as state Initiatives.

In order to be considered for the volunteer training program, you must fill out AND submit the application and all forms no later than November 12, 2021 and submit a training fee check of $120.00 at the time of your interview in November or December.

The Henry County Master Gardener Extension Volunteer Program is a selective process, which requires a complete background and motor vehicle check. You will be contacted for an interview date.
