

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA
EXTENSION

Lamar County

The Lamar County Extension office partnered with the health department and senior center to co-sponsor and participate in two area wellness events. At these interactive multi-county and multi-agency events, UGA Extension health and wellness publications were disseminated to approximately 500 attendees. Additionally, the office partnered with the local library to videotape community stakeholders reading books focused on agriculture in an effort to increase agricultural literacy among K-5 students. Eight videos were viewed a total of 4,216 times. The 4-H program conducted the Great Southeast Pollinator Census at the local elementary school with over 600 educators and students participating.

A healthy Georgia is a better Georgia.

University of Georgia Cooperative Extension offers programming focused on mental health, financial well-being, nutrition and everything in between. UGA Extension had 1,756,355 face-to-face contacts in 2024. Of these, 200,067 contacts addressed health and wellness topics, including rural and farm stress.

Extension is committed to helping rural Georgia farmers and families thrive. UGA Extension provides physical and mental health resources to keep rural Georgia growing stronger, especially when times are tough. Our new Behavioral Health Team provides fact sheets, trainings and a weekly blog—all to help Georgia individuals and families thrive.

Growing cities.

UGA Extension helps urban gardeners develop school gardens, community gardens and urban farms to benefit their communities. Extension works with educators to create sustainable outdoor classrooms that function as successful teaching tools. Community gardeners are supported in growing healthy food crops in small spaces while urban farmers are encouraged to apply the latest agricultural research to grow their businesses.

Committed to Georgia's youth.

Georgia's 4-H enrolled 193,518 youths across the state during the 2023-24 school year.

Get the facts.
