Thermal process and challenge studies help to create recommendations to safely can foods at home, ultimately preventing botulism.

The use of artificial intelligence and machine learning helps to ensure the safety of imported foods.

The use of blockchain revolutionized food traceability by enabling the tracking of food products to their source, enhancing food authenticity and safety.

Decontamination methods reduce the prevalence of Salmonella enterica in pistachios and apples.